Tories become feuding rabble as one blames another for national catastrophe

JOHN MAJOR'S Government has degenerated into a feuding rabble as continuing economic catastrophe leads to a squalid power struggle within Tory ranks. The Tories' slender parliamentary majority grows ever smaller with each spectacular by-election loss, and Major's personal popularity has plummeted to the lowest of any Prime Minister in British history.

The Government's position has appeared ever more precarious following a string of scandals and internal back-stabbing over the past month.

DESPERATE BID

First came the sacking of Hunger Chancellor Norman Lamont, in a desperate bid to find a scapegoat for the Prime Minister's own economic failures. The ploy failed, as an embittered Lamont publicly complained that he had simply been following the orders of the Prime Minister.

Then the scandal of the secret financing of the Tory Party blew up in the Government's face. Allegations that almost half a million pounds donated by fugitive Turkish businessman Asil Nadir was stolen money were compounded by further rumours of seven million pounds given to the Tories by Saudi Arabia.

ESTABLISHMENT

British Nationalist has always maintained that all the Establishment parties are underpinned by foreign bribes, but now the sordid truth is finally coming out into the open.

Both the Tories and Labour have always kept the sources of their funds a closely guarded secret.

COMPROMISED

Any money donated to a party by a foreign power or individual would only be given with strings attached, and it is therefore of grave concern to the British people that the governing political party has been compromised in this way. John Major has already openly admitted that the Conservatives are seeking cash from alien businessmen based in this country, and it now appears increasingly likely that foreign governments are also greasing the wheels of Tory power.

SCANDAL

A number of Tory MPs have been implicated in the Asil Nadir scandal, including Michael Mates. But we can rest assured that the rot extends right to the very top. As with the Lamont sacking, John Major hopes to deflect criticism from himself by throwing another colleague to the wolves.

But Major is rapidly running out of scapegoats, and even the Tory press is now openly calling for his removal.

We can be sure that the Tory squabbles reported in the press are only the tip of the iceberg. The Conservatives are divided on Europe, on the economy, and even on how to con the British people into supporting them.

If the present turmoil within the Government continues, we may be facing the welcome prospect of a General Election sooner rather than later.

JOHN MAJOR is increasingly isolated and under pressure within his own party. As a result of his catastrophic mismanagement of the economy, his rating in the country is at a record low, and now even many Tory newspapers are calling for his removal.

FORGOTTEN but not gone — Norman Lamont was the fall-guy for the Prime Minister's own incompetence. But the disgruntled ex-Chancellor spilled the beans on who really caused Britain's economic crisis. Lamont claimed that it was John Major's own decisions which led to the disaster of Black Wednesday and the E.R.M. withdrawal.*

More action in Birmingham...

The British Nationalist Party held an excellent Day of Action in Birmingham last month. It was the second time this year that a paper sale was held in the city centre, to the delight of shoppers who eagerly bought copies of British Nationalist. The activity ended with a leaflet drop and demonstration (above) by forty activists on the Tivdale estate, in protest at the planned building of 'Europe's biggest Hindu temple'. ## British Nationalist

No. 133 JULY 1993

Editor: John Morse

NOW OR NEVER!
Our time is coming —
let's get it right

Britain's rulers, the politicians who have now spent a couple of generations reducing her to the level of a demoralised third world slum, are now busily shooting themselves in the foot as fast as they can.

The Tories were practically wiped out in the recent Newbury by-election. They managed to turn their 12,000 majority in this so-called 'safe' Conservative seat into a 22,000 one — for the Liberal democrats.

Their candidate came across as a typical Tory. He looked like a smug fatcat who has been doing well for himself out of the existing state of things.

This image was confirmed in many people's minds when the then chancellor, Norman Lamont, spoke at his election meeting, saying that he "regretted nothing."

This statement, made in the depths of the worst recession since the 1930's to people who have lost jobs and homes as a result of Tory policies, went down like a pork sausage in a synagogue.

Meanwhile, Labour's candidate might have been hand-picked for the purpose of turning the punters off.

Mr. Bilcliffe, whom they chose to represent their interests in this respectable Berkshire town, was spotted by Newbury BNP members in a local pub on polling night. He seemed to be a slightly swarthy gentleman with a pony tail — albeit dressed for this one occasion in an ill-fitting suit. He might have been a clone taken from Labour's inner city "militant" wing.

It was hardly surprising that while the Tories were losing their seat in style Labour should have been doing exactly the same with their deposit! They got barely more than a thousand votes.

Since then the bad vibes in both Tory and Labour rank across the country have got much worse, reaching right to the top.

In these circumstances, where neither the ruling party nor the official 'Opposition' commands any public support, it is right, proper and inevitable that there is going to be a popular backlash. What is not right, proper or inevitable is that it should be the likes of Paddy Ashdown and his Liberal Democrats who should be the gainers from it.

It is clear that the Lib Dems are in reality only winning because they are seen as the best of a bad bunch. Few vote for them out of any positive support for any principles they might have.

Indeed, in most elections the Lib Dems are careful to avoid spelling out their policies too clearly. This is not surprising. To the extent that Ashdown and Co. have any at all these consist largely of everything that the people quite rightly most hate and fear in the programmes of their main-party rivals, from multi-racialism to Maastricht.

The time is clearly growing ripe for a force in British politics that genuinely represents the gut instincts of the great mass of British people. Only the BNP with its clearly stated patriotic platform, fits the bill. Whether or not many ordinary Britons as yet know it we alone are the only true opposition in the country. Our rate of growth is now faster than it ever has been. It is up to us to turn ourselves into the force the people are yearning for. This must be done NOW or it may be never.

SCANDAL OF THE JUDGE IN MASSIVE DOLE FIDDLE

African family claims British dole while living in Nigeria

NIGERIAN high court judge Philip Okpobrisi is claiming British social security benefits of almost £100 a week, while living in Africa.

Okpobrisi has a council house in Brixton, for which most of the £40-a-week rent is paid for by the DSS.

Back in Nigeria, he lives like a king on his judge's salary, and boasts of the "good life" he enjoys on visits to London. In his West African homeland, Okpobrisi has a chauffeur, two

This case has highlighted the madness — and wickedness — of the Tory Government's 'open door' policy towards immigration.

IMMIGRANTS

While thousands of British families are homeless and the country is desperately short of council housing, the Tories are continuing to allow hundreds of thousands of immigrants to pour into Britain each year, competing for our jobs and our housing. Moreover, mass immigration is placing a huge burden on the NHS and social security system, as most immigrants are automatically entitled to these benefits even if they have made no contributions through tax and National Insurance. It illustrates perfectly the contempt that the Tory fat-cats feel for British whites.

CHEAP LABOUR

All the Tories want is cheap labour and cheap votes, to appease the alien spivs and parasites who are the real rulers of Britain.

Philip Okpobrisi is sworn in as a Nigerian high Court Judge (left). So why is the Government allowing him to abuse the British social security system? At a time when the Tories claim they are to save billions of pounds by cutting benefits, this seems a strange way to go about it.

body-guards and a beautiful mansion.

Okpobrisi first pitched up in Britain in 1973, to take a London University law course — which he failed.

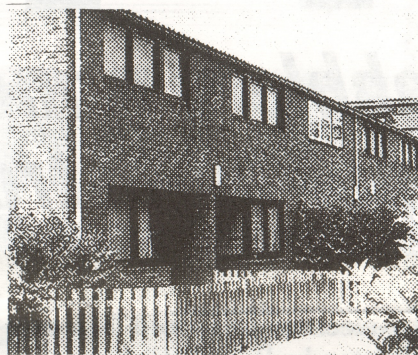

He told left-wing Lambeth Council that he needed a home for himself, wife Mercy and children Monica, Evhawere and Obukowho.

Okpobrisi's wife Mercy is living in Nigeria, yet is still able to benefit from her husband's false social security claim

The family were quickly given a three-bedroomed house in Brixton, even though at they were still living in Africa, and despite the fact that there are thousands of British families on the waiting list for a house.

In fact, the Okpobrisi family are now in Nigeria, and they have illegally sub-let the Brixton house to another immigrant family. The council house and telephone are still registered in their name, and Okpobrisi now sends a friend to cash his social security giro.

Okpobrisi's luxury council home in Brixton was given to him by left-wing Lambeth Council. It is being illegally sub-let to another family.

Okpobrisi lives in this luxury mansion in his native Nigeria, while at the same time being an official council tennant in London.

ALIEN FLOOD SET TO CONTINUE SAY TORIES

Government's latest immigration gloom

THE TORIES are trying to pull yet another fast one on the British people over immigration.

The latest ridiculous idea is to pay immigrants thousands of pounds worth of 'compensation' if their applications to settle in Britain are delayed.

HANDOUTS

The proposal for the handouts under the Citizen's Charter came from the Home Affairs Select Committee. The cross-party Committee of MPs recommended that a new system of compensation should be introduced and widely advertised, so that applicants who suffered "distress or financial losses" could make a claim.

The Committee pointed out that even under the present ad hoc system, many immigrants had already been paid sums of up to £23,000 each in recent years to compensate for delays by the Immigration and Nationality Department.

The Government's Asylum Bill is designed to make entry into Britain easier for so-called 'refugees', over 45,000 of whom made applications last year.

PHONEY IDENTITIES

Present rules allow each claimant to receive DSS payments for each application, and many immigrants make multiple applications using several phoney identities in order to get multiple pay-outs at the British taxpayer's expense.

Of course, phoney "refugees" who have gone through the official channels to get here represent only a tiny fraction of the overall total entering Britain.

The official number of entrants to Britain for 1990 alone was 267,000.

But one senior immigration officer for the London area has suggested the real figure could be much higher. Many third-worlders arriving on tourist visas rapidly disappear into the immigrant communities and are unlikely ever to be tracked down.

The truth is, that this Tory Government has no intention of stopping immigration, because immigrants are an essential source of cheap labour and cheap votes.

AIDS: The great cover-up continues

It's getting to look more and more like a cover-up.

First came the case of African immigrant midwife Dorothy Ecookit. Ugandan-born Ecookit died of AIDS after having delivered the children of 54 mothers at Farnborough hospital, Kent. When one of the mothers, Joanne Clarke, went to the hospital to confirm whether or not the midwife who had delivered her own daughter had been Mrs Ecookit, the hospital authorities shifted, shuffled and lied.

ANGUISHED

Only after anguished Joanne Clarke produced a photograph showing Ecookit standing next to her did they come clean and admit the truth.

In a second scandal, queer gynaecologist Terence Shuttleworth, a consultant at the All Saints Hospital,

Chatham, was diagnosed as HIV positive in early March. It seems his homosexuality had been notorious; it was well known that he cohabited with a male 'friend'.

Yet he had never been required to take an AIDS test despite having been involved in some 6,000 operations in the ten years that AIDS was first acknowledged to exist in Britain.

In an equally appalling case, homosexual doctor Douglas Haire recently died of AIDS after treating thousands of patients who were totally unaware of his condition.

Apparently, the official line being pushed is: "What patients don't know can't hurt them."

The medical Establishment, like the political Establishment, is being utterly reckless with the lives of British patients — and all in the name of 'political correctness'.

The politicians are doing their best to suppress the truth about AIDS, for fear of upsetting powerful 'minority' interests.

ALIEN DISEASE

AIDS is an alien disease which originated in Africa before being imported to the West. It is spread mainly by queers and drug-abusers.

This harsh truth, however, does not suit the political Establishment, since it implicates some of their favourite 'minorities' — particularly queers.

We think it is time the lid was blown off this hypocrisy. The public has a right to know the truth.

UGANDAN-born Dorothy Ecookit was hired by the NHS as a midwife — despite being an AIDS-carrier.

GOVERNMENT ON THE ROPES

Tories' night of long knives follows massive election defeat

QUESTION: What would you call a man who would sacrifice the career of a personal friend to save his own skin?

ANSWER: 'The Prime Minister'.

Other words spring to mind when describing John Major. Words like 'coward' and 'wimp'.

Perhaps we should expect no better from a man who reportedly tucks his shirt into his underpants.

So it was that Hunger Chancellor Norman Lamont finally got the sack — not because he was a lousy Chancellor (though of course he was) but because he was a political liability to his 'friend' Major.

ECONOMIC FAILURES

Just as the Tories did not hesitate to ditch Margaret Thatcher when it suited them, so the careerist-apparatchiks led by Major got rid of Lamont for precisely the same reason: His economic failures were an electoral liability.

But the Tories' disastrous showing in the County Council elections and the Newbury by-election are symptomatic of something far more profound than the traditional unpopularity of a government in mid-term.

It was reported last month by the Daily Telegraph — traditionally a staunch Tory paper — that John Major was the most unpopular British Prime Minister in history. His rating fell below even that of Margaret Thatcher at the height of the Poll Tax scandal.

Even the rabidly pro-Tory Times is now campaigning for Major to be

MAJOR's new 'scientific' approach to the economy — he crosses his fingers and hopes for the best. If only Britain could get rid of the Prime Minister as easily as he ditched his Chancellor, the country might be in a better condition.

sacked — not through any laudable desire to rescue Britain's fortunes, but simply as a cynical trick by which to replace him with a more 'electable' (but equally incompetent) stooge.

CON TRICK

This was precisely the con trick which the Tories came up with last time — ditching 'strident' Mrs Thatcher in favour of 'nice' Mr Major.

If the public were stupid enough to fall for that one, it was only because they perceived Labour as an even worse alternative.

Ordinary British people are becoming increasingly weary and frustrated with the 'party politics' swindle.

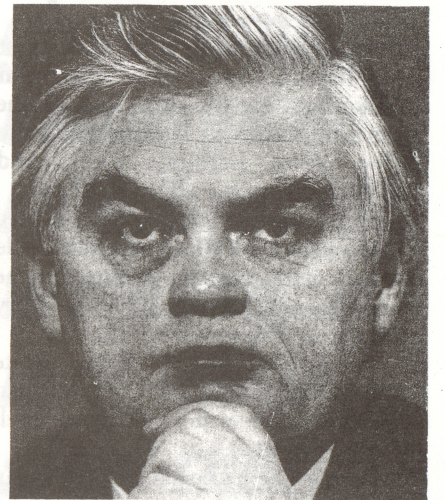

The so-called 'democratic' parties (Tory, Labour and Liberal) have between them created a political vacuum which can only be filled by a genuine political movement — the British National Party.

Indeed, there is growing evidence that the public is at last realising that the BNP is the only party worth voting for. The Party has grown steadily as ordinary people despair of the lies and deceit of the Establishment parties.

SPECTACULAR VOTES

Spectacular by-election votes of up to 20 per cent have been won recently by the BNP, and equally importantly, the Party has been able to win consistently 'respectable' scores in a wide geographical area, as demonstrated in the county council elections last May.

GOOD riddance to Norman Lamont

Tory weakness gives IRA new confidence

ULSTER has once again been blitzed by a wave of IRA bombs following the terrorists' recent atrocities on the British mainland.

Belfast's opera house (right) was severely damaged, while the village of Magherafelt, County Londonderry, was devastated by a massive bomb which caused £5 million worth of damage and was clearly designed to kill civilians.

The real disgrace is that the atrocities of the IRA could be halted immediately if the British Government took the necessary military action to wipe out the terrorists.

Ulster is a relatively small part of Britain, not much bigger than Yorkshire and with a population of only 1.5 million. For this reason, the security forces are able to quickly identify terrorists and their movements around the province. Yet time and time again the police and the arm express their frustration at not being allowed to take action against known terrorists. Because of the Government's weak-minded 'softly-softly' policy, the security forces feel they are fighting with one hand tied behind their backs.

The IRA has openly declared war on Britain and its policy is to kill soldiers, policemen and civilians both in Ulster and on the mainland. Yet the Tory Government, supposedly strong on law and order, has refused to allow our troops a 'shoot to kill' mandate against the IRA — even though the terrorists themselves operate such a policy against our soldiers.

It is disgraceful that Ulster folk, who are among the most patriotic of anyone in the British Isles, should be treated in such shabby fashion. If the British National Party was in power, the IRA would be hunted down and exterminated within twenty-four hours. We do not believe in 'civil rights' for vermin.

Unemployment still rising — but Tories fiddle the figures

UNEMPLOYMENT has risen to its highest official level since the war — but the true number of jobless is much higher than the Government admits.

In May this year it was announced that the total had risen to just over three million, or 10.5 per cent. But this figure conceals a huge number of people who are jobless but not counted officially as 'unemployed'.

FIDDLE

Almost 400,000 16 to 18-year-olds are unemployed but not old enough to claim benefits. Around 300,000 adults are on various 'training' schemes designed to keep them off the official register. The meagre 'training allowance' they are paid is effectively the same as unemployment benefit.

The face of despair. Unemployment and homelessness are now at record levels thanks to the Tories' catastrophic economic policies.

The biggest fiddle, however, is the huge growth of people on invalidity benefit, who are not classed as unemployed because technically they are not fit for work. Since 1990, the number in this group has jumped by almost 600,000 to a total of 2.11 million.

TARGETS

New evidence has emerged that benefit offices are pressuring unemployed claimants to sign off from the job register and switch to sickness benefit, in order to meet Government targets for reducing the numbers officially on the dole.

Employment Service managers are dishing out thousands of bogus 'sick notes' to claimants enabling them to claim sickness benefit instead of unemployment pay.

The Tories have fiddled the unemployment figures eighteen times since they came to power in 1979.

BOGUS

Under the pre-1979 system of counting, the current jobless figure would be 4.6 million. With the addition of the bogus sickness figure, the total number of unemployed would top FIVE million.

Whatever the true figure, most people are aware from their own experience that unemployment is a massive problem.

It has been caused by Tory mismanagement of the economy, a flood of inferior imported goods, and a tidal wave of mass-immigration.

Simply repatriating a fraction of Britain's immigrants would wipe out unemployment overnight.

Since the Tories came to power, over half a million people have been made homeless.

SWINDLE

During the property boom swindle of the 1980s, millions of people were encouraged to buy their homes at inflated prices only to see the value of their houses plummet when the boom ended.

Spiralling interest rates (another Tory swindle) have led to thousands of homes being repossessed and families being turned out onto the street.

In the past year, 69,000 families have lost their homes through repossession.

ECONOMIC CATASTROPHE

Faced with economic catastrophe, the Government has dithered and fumbled. Instead of blocking imports and investing in British industries, the Tories have chosen to pay foreign firms huge grants to set up factories in Britain — producing goods in direct competition with British firms.

Just what kind of 'economic policy' is this?

ASIL NADIR — THE TORY SCANDAL THAT WON'T GO AWAY

FUGITIVE Turkish businessman Asil Nadir has announced that he will not be returning to Britain to face trial on fraud and false accounting charges involving sums of up to £13 million.

This is perhaps hardly surprising. What is utterly disgraceful in the affair is Nadir's links with the Tory party.

Firstly, we learn that Tory MP Michael Mates personally interceded with the Attorney General on Nadir's behalf, and gave Nadir an expensive watch. Then it emerges that Nadir donated over £440,000 to the Conservatives — some press reports have speculated it could have been as much as £1.5 million.

Andrew Roth, publisher of the guide to MPs and Ministers, Parliamentary Profiles, gives a clue as to what was going on behind the scenes. In the Daily Telegraph (09.06.93) he is quoted as saying:

"There had been a special effort to build up non-white friends of the Conservative Party, and Asil Nadir was a serious contributor to party funds. He will have been to lunches and high-level functions at No.10."

Of course, there could be a perfectly innocent explanation as to why Ministers such as Michael Heseltine and Peter Brooke also interceded for Nadir, and why he was allowed to escape to Cyprus.

The hypocrisy of Winston Churchill cruelly exposed

Terrified Tory back-pedals on race-warning

IT IS a cruel irony that the latest Establishment 'race row' has been sparked off by the grandson of the man who did more than anything to bring about Britain's racial and political downfall.

Winston Churchill (Jnr), failed politician and Tory backbencher, made a catastrophic boob by mentioning the unmentionable during a routine Tory meeting in Bolton last month.

Perhaps, as black Tory candidate John Taylor put it, Mr Churchill had indeed been affected by the recent spell of warm weather.

Perhaps he had been, as they say in Westminster circles, somewhat 'tired and emotional'.

IMMIGRATION

Whatever the reason, Churchill's complaint about mass immigration, meek and feeble as it was, unleashed a savage counter-attack not only from the predictable left-wing sources, but from his own Tory 'colleagues' as well.

According to the Daily Mail (29.05.93):

"The Home Office immediately distanced itself from the comments, while Mr Churchill's colleagues on the back benches openly condemned him."

It was all very predictable: 'Right-wing' Tory condemns mass immigration and is ostracised by the 'good' Tories who believe that Britain has a duty to accept any third world 'refugee' who chooses to come here.

ALIENS

The Tories are in a peculiar quandary when it comes to the subject of race and immigration. The Prime Minister and his cabinet are slavishly in the thrall of the people who really control our country, and must therefore rigorously tow the pro-immigration line.

The back-benchers, however, secretly know that their country is being sold out, and therefore occasionally have twinges of conscience. They are usually kept in check by the threat of losing their privileged financial position should they speak out against the system.

OUTBURSTS

Ritual outbursts such as those made by Enoch Powell, Churchill, etc are therefore useful as a 'safety valve' so that 'right-wing' Tories can kid themselves that deep down the Conservative Party is anti-immigration and is doing its best to 'control' it.

What Churchill actually said during his speech was hardly controversial in itself. He merely pointed out that Britain each year takes in third worlders in numbers equivalent to the size of Grantham. He noted that many of our northern cities such as Bradford are now more than 50 per cent non-white.

Moslems are claiming that they number over two million in Britain.

Tory MP James Pawsey whined: "My understanding is that legislation over the last few years has done a great deal to reduce the flow."

The Tories are of course quite aware that this is a lie. But through a combination of fear and self-serving greed, the Conservative Party is determined that the numbers of aliens in this country will increase until the darkening of Britain becomes irreversible.

And what of brave Mr Churchill? The first thing he did when the storm broke was to frantically back-pedal and dilute his original comments by saying that he had been quoted out of context and that he felt his views on other matters were "more important" than the race quotes. Who says the Tories have no moral backbone?

THE DARKENING of Britain: A school in Yorkshire

Tyndall in Reading

IN A STIRRING 'call to arms' British National Party leader John Tyndall addressed a Berkshire and North Hants BNP branch meeting in Reading, Berks, on the evening of Wednesday 2nd June.

The last year has seen a dramatic growth in membership and support across the region, not least in Reading itself, as the Party has stepped up its level of activity. Both publicity and new recruits have been gained in the process.

PANIC

All this has happened in spite of calls from local politicians of all the old parties for bans of one kind or another on the BNP's activities so as to prevent its policies from getting a public hearing.

One of the loudest of the anti-BNP agitators has been the Mayor of Reading, Punjabi-born Rajinder Sohal.

Mr Sohal, who came to Britain in the 1950s, now presumes to speak for the local townfolk, and heads the self-styled Reading 'Council for Racial Equality' — a publicly funded agitprop group.

Far from promoting 'equality' this group has methodically set about trying to crush the town's British majority with assorted 'reverse discrimination' schemes.

UNDERTOW OF ANGER

But one sign of how little success he has been having with the general public is the level of support the BNP has built up in Reading. There is an undertow of anger among local people who are sick of being pushed around by the gang of left-wing tyrants (Labour and Tory) who currently occupy the town hall.

While the left-wing council wastes ratepayers money on pushing 'multiculturalism' for all it is worth, Reading's real problems (such as law and order) go unattended.

The Tory party is seen, just as much as Labour and the Liberals, as putting 'ethnic' votes first. This is the background of local BNP success.

As Mr Tyndall pointed out in his speech, what is happening in Reading is not unique. In fact it is a representation in miniature of what is happening on a national scale.

The politicians of the old parties have failed Britain. They can deliver neither law and order nor economic prosperity, nor any other of the basics of civilised national life. They have made Britain an object of contempt in the eyes of the whole world, said Mr Tyndall.

SOLUTIONS

Nationalism, the one force which has clear and realistic solutions to the nation's problems can only be fought with repression and lies. In this the politicians are aided by their tame hacks in the media.

Nevertheless, stated Mr Tyndall, these forces of the old world are doomed to fail. Now is the time, he said in a forceful and inspiring conclusion, for Nationalists to march forward under the banners of the BNP to final victory.

The meeting was filmed for the BBC's 'Heart of the Matter' programme.

Major acting like US poodle, as usual

No sooner had it been announced that President Clinton had ordered US forces to fire missiles on Iraq than our Prime Minister John Major, like an obedient poodle, endorsed the decision.

The pretext for the firing of the missiles was the extremely dubious story that back in April the Iraqis had plotted to assassinate former President Bush — though why they should want to do so when Bush was no longer in office no-one has explained.

More likely, the Americans, acting on the orders of their Israeli lobby, are seeking an excuse to renew the Gulf War — though for what reasons we do not yet know.

BNP wins more TV coverage

SUNDAY 13th of June saw the screening of yet another television programme ('Heart of the Matter') purporting to deal with the issue of 'racist' violence.

As usual, the villain of the piece was named as the British National Party, and a variety of communist agitators, immigrants' spokesmen and barmy clerics were wheeled out to demand that the BNP should be banned.

The programme at least allowed the BNP to state its case, albeit very briefly, and when it did so the Party spokesmen came across very well.

However, presenter Joan Bakewell carefully maintained the air of wounded innocence and smug holier-than-thou morality that we have come to expect from the Establishment's liberal-left. Her elegantly pained expression left no doubt as to her moral indignation at coming face to face with 'racism'.

CRITICISM

The tone of the programme was not a balanced criticism of the BNP's policies, but rather how best to ban the Party through the legal system.

The programme cleverly (and falsely) implied that the BNP was responsible for a series of 'racial attacks' — without offering a shred of evidence in support of this.

BNP members were portrayed as 'thugs', while the Party's communist opponents were without exception treated with the utmost reverence. No mention was made of the fact that 'anti-racists' openly incite and carry out attacks against BNP supporters, ranging from threatening phone-calls, to beatings and petrol bombings.

One leftist interviewed by Miss Bakewell spends his time publishing the addresses of BNP activists, resulting in attacks against their homes and dismissal from their places of employment. This tactic was not even mentioned by Miss Bakewell, let alone criticised.

EMOTIVE

Instead of a rational discussion about immigration, we were treated to an emotive report on the murder of a young black man Stephen Lawrence, allegedly by a group of whites. Without a shred of evidence, the killing was presented as a 'racial attack', with the unspoken implication that the BNP was at least indirectly responsible for encouraging such attacks.

Yet the BNP has never advocated violence against anyone on the grounds of his or her race; indeed, anyone engaging in such activity would be immediately expelled from the Party.

It would be quite hypocritical of us to condemn racial attacks against white people while encouraging such attacks against blacks. Furthermore, such attacks would be counter-productive to our cause as the general public would quite rightly view them with revulsion.

1960's MORALITY

Our argument has always been that racial attacks should be treated equally seriously regardless of the victim's race, and this is where the likes of Miss Bakewell with their 1960's liberal morality signally fail.

VICTIM Gary Daly

For example, it happened last month that a white degree student, Gary Daly, was nearly killed by a black assailant in almost identical circumstances to the incident in which Stephen Lawrence lost his life. He was set upon for no apparent reason by a man wielding a baseball bat, and is now in a coma on a life support machine. The attack was apparently motiveless, as there was no attempt at robbery. There must therefore be the possibility that the attack could have had a racial motive.

Will the BBC be making a 'Heart of the Matter' investigation into this case? We suspect not.

OBITUARY

Stanley Clayton-Garnett

STANLEY CLAYTON-GARNETT, a well-known and highly respected member of the British National Party throughout Yorkshire, died of cancer in a Leeds hospital last month. He was 71.

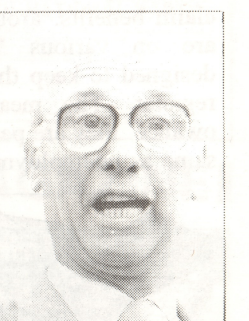

This news, sad though it was when it came, was not unexpected. Over the past year or two, Stan Clayton-Garnett and his friends had known that he had not long to live, the terminal nature of his illness having been diagnosed by specialists. He approached this last stage of his life with great courage in the face of increasing pain.

Almost to the end, he attempted to do what he could to assist the BNP, and even in the final months was attending meetings.

Stan Clayton-Garnett was born in 1922. He took an interest in politics at an early age and was a junior member of British Union just before the war. When war came he joined the RAF and rose to the rank of Flight Lieutenant. After the war he took up an academic career in which his last appointment was that of headmaster of Delph Hill Middle School, Bradford.

On retirement in the early 1980s, Stan plunged himself into political activity — it having been impossible for him to identify himself with the politics in which he believed while still in his headmaster's post. He joined the British National Party after seeing its general election broadcast in 1983. Soon he began to play a leading role in the promotion of the party in Yorkshire, speaking all over the county and sometimes further afield. For a time he served as BNP Chairman for the North of England. He also put in much work trying to build bridges between the BNP and other nationalist organisations. It was not his fault that these efforts failed.

His problems with cancer began several years ago. Chemotherapy treatment seemed for a while to have arrested the growths, but the illness reappeared and spread, causing his eventual decease.

Stan Clayton-Garnett was a good friend as well as a valuable colleague and some of us will recall many pleasant hours spent in his company, often at his home in Leeds. He will be greatly missed.

Our deepest sympathies go out to his wife Nan and family in their bereavement.

CORRECTION

In the April 1993 edition of British Nationalist an article concerning Asian violence in Halifax was published entitled 'White folk under siege in Halifax race-war hell'. The photograph originally intended to accompany the article was inadvertently substituted by another which in fact showed a London-based Asian pop-group who were completely unconnected with the violence in Halifax.

We regret any confusion which may have been caused.

TRAINING SEMINAR

British National Party leaders' and activists' training seminar: Central London, July 15th, in the evening. Subject: The Essentials of Leadership. Speaker: John Tyndall. This is the first of a series of monthly training seminars that will be held in London over the coming months. All those who wish to attend should contact their local branches for further details nearer the date or ring the BNP Bookshop at 081 316 4721.

GANGSTER GOVERNMENT

Public outrage followed a riot which took place in the streets of Welling, south east London, in early May.

An imported mob of criminal hooligans terrorised and assaulted local people, including women and small children, vandalized property, including private homes, and looted shops after the authorities gave a go-ahead for them to stage an "anti-racist" march through the area.

STABBING

The mob claimed to be protesting over the death in a stabbing incident of a black youth, Stephen Lawrence, which they said was a racial killing by whites. This had taken place some miles away in the Eltham district a couple of weeks before. Nobody had in fact been charged by police with the stabbing.

The pretext of the mob for coming to Welling was that the British National Party's south London Bookshop is located there. They claimed that this was in some way the cause of Lawrence's stabbing.

AGITATORS

In a number of earlier cases in which black youths have died the left-wing agitators behind the various self-styled "anti-racist" groups have tried to draw a similar link. But the police have categorically denied that any such link exists.

The truth is that violent crime has become the norm throughout London, including areas where there are no Nationalist bookshops in sight. Many of the victims, not least in areas like Brixton, Tottenham and other inner city ghetto districts, have been white. But as local people in south east London were quick to observe when the 'anti-racists', backed up by the media, started working up a furore over Lawrence's death, little is ever said by these people about these victims. Indeed, the same left-wing agitprop brigade are equally quiet when it comes to cases of blacks killing other blacks.

DISORDER

Not for nothing do police now fear that the kind of disorder seen in Welling is being cynically fomented by the left for its own political motives.

Within hours of Stephen Lawrence's death the leaders of a number of competing 'anti-racist' groups had descended on his parents' home in order to get the family's seal of approval for their own particular campaigns as they fought to cut their rivals out of access to what they all saw as a profitable bandwagon for themselves.

SINN FEIN LINKS

These included such groups as the "Anti-Racist Alliance" headed by black former TV journalist Marc Wadsworth, the ambitious chairman of the Labour Party's black sections, who wants to be an MP. Wadsworth has also been involved in promoting links with Sinn Fein, the political wing of the IRA. He personally helped organise one meeting with these spokesmen for the IRA in Republican west Belfast.

One police officer said: "We believe that the [Lawrence] family are being used as pawns in a far wider game." Speaking of the "anti-racists" who were trying to get the Lawrences into their hands, he added: "Our inquiries are in fact being hampered by these people."

One of the most confused of all was Stephen Lawrence's father who said: "I don't know much about the BNP. Who are they?" Earlier he had called for the hanging of his son's killers whoever they might be. Ironically the BNP with its strong law and order line, is the only political party in Britain which calls for the return of the rope.

Meanwhile, it was the people of Welling who were made to pay for the political ambitions of the 'anti-racist' brigade. The latter's protest march, from which the Lawrence family dissociated itself, turned into an all-out attack on the town. Shoppers were chased through the high street, at least one car was overturned and wrecked and the windows of a working men's club were put in.

All this happened up to a mile away from the BNP bookshop, the supposed target of the marchers' 'anger'.

Senior police officers described the trouble as the work of an outside "rent-a-mob." Commander Tim Gibsen said that his men had been disgusted by the marchers' behaviour.

But its organisers trumpeted it as a success. These included the self-styled 'Youth Against Racism in Europe', which is believed to have links with Militant Labour party elements, and 'Panther U.K.', a black group which seems to have recruited for the march in ghetto districts not only in London but far beyond.

OUTSIDER

Another outsider to Welling, Dev Barrah, the Asian chairman of the so-called 'Greenwich Action Committee Against Racial Attacks' (publicly funded by the ratepayers of neighbouring Greenwich Council) acclaimed the rampage as a "show of strength by politicized blacks."

But local people were not impressed. Adding insult to injury the 'Anti-Nazi League' (ANAL) put in for a march of its own against Welling the very next Saturday so as not to be cut out by its rivals in the 'anti-racist' industry. Like all the other 'anti-racist' groups ANAL (a cover name for the Socialist Workers Party) has never had a word to say about the white victims of crime in London. On this occasion it intended to use Stephen Lawrence's death to demand a law against so-called 'racial harassment'. ANAL has made it plain that it wants this law to operate only against white people.

When ANAL spokesman Paul Holborowitz tried to address an angry meeting of Welling residents and businessmen during the week after the 'anti-racist' riots claiming some sort of right to go ahead with his own march, he was shouted down. Local people made it plain that they did not want their decent and respectable town to be turned into a target for ANAL and its perverted campaigns. They wanted law and order to be preserved so that they could go about their business in peace and quiet.

For once the 'people power' of ordinary British folk prevailed, in the event, the ANAL march, made up largely of left-wing student homosexuals and their ethnic friends, was routed away from Welling.

When a government chooses to rule by mob violence, it is a clear sign that the regime is in crisis. The Tory Government increasingly sees such lawless methods as the last desperate means to cling to power.

Residents fear repeat of violence

Plea to halt ANL march

SHOPKEEPERS and residents are pleading with the authorities to ban an anti-racist march this weekend.

Several store owners are worried more trouble erupted last weekend when demonstrators reached the British National Party headquarters in Upper Wickham Lane, Welling.

DAY OF ACTION IN BURNLEY

A VERY LIVELY DAY was had in Burnley, Lancashire, on June 26th, when the British National Party North West Region staged a day of action in the town in support of its candidate, Scott O'Sullivan, who was fighting a seat in a local council by-election.

By the time this copy reaches the reader the result of the election (on July 1st) will be known, but it is not yet known as we go to press.

The day of action attracted the fury of the BNP's opponents, who mobilised mobsters from all over the region and beyond to try and prevent the BNP activity going ahead. The mob arrived at the rendezvous point at nearby Todmorden before the main BNP party had arrived. Heavily outnumbered, the ten nationalists who were present put up a stout defence against the forty-odd who attacked them. In the process the pub used as the rendezvous was largely wrecked by the left-wingers — although the pubman and his staff have no connection whatever with the BNP. It was later found that the leftists were using some stolen vehicles, and some of the vans they arrived in were traced to the Salford area.

In the end, with a little help from Yorkshire and London activists, the BNP party swelled to over eighty — no doubt their opponents would not have dared attack them if they had been present in this number. They proceeded to the area of Burnley where the election was taking place, and had a massed leaflet drive and paper selling session, with the day ending in a short rally with the candidate and regional organiser Ken Henderson speaking.

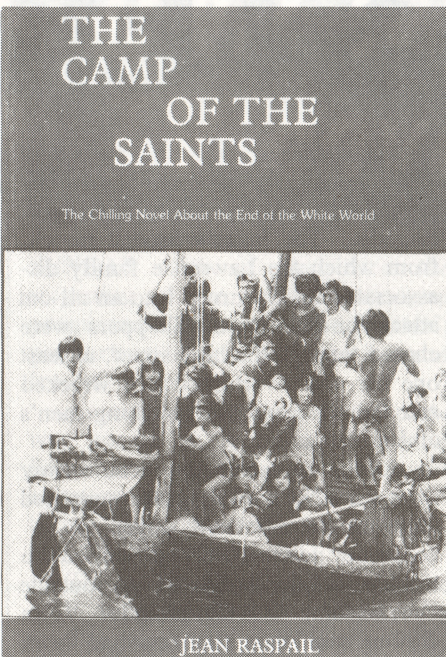

Our NW activists have told us that the reception from the local people in the area was truly fantastic — indicating huge potential support for the BNP. Whether this will be translated into votes at the election in question remains to be seen. What is certain, however, is that the BNP has now established itself in Burnley and is there to stay.

The day's events won massive media publicity throughout the North West. The turnout of activists was impressive, most of these coming from within the region. Thanks are due, however, to the London and Yorkshire contingents who helped swell the numbers.

CHURCHILL'S WAR (by David Irving). The highly controversial story of Britain's World War II leader during the late pre-war and wartime years. The writer's theme is that Churchill was the man whose war policy ruined Britain and the British Empire. £16.95 plus £2.12 p&p.

CAMP OF THE SAINTS (by Jean Raspail). This sensational novel deals with an Asian invasion of Europe by means of boat landings of millions in France. The story is an horrific picture of what could happen in the future if present 'open-door' policies continue. £5.00 plus 66p p&p.

THE ZIONIST CONNECTION II (by Alfred Lilienthal). A sensational and courageous exposure of Zionist power politics by a non-Zionist Jew, this book will open the eyes of many to the methods by which Zionist pressure groups operate. £13.00 plus £1.62 p&p.

NEW BOOKLET

THE ENEMY WITHIN: The latest booklet published by the British National Party, this consists of the text of a letter of complaint to the Broadcasting Complaints Commission following the Public Eye programme on the party in January. The Commission refused to consider the complaint on the ludicrous grounds that it was lodged 'out of time' (actually less than five months after the programme). The booklet, although it deals only with one specific TV programme, highlights the kind of lying and brainwashing techniques that are typical of television and the mass media generally. The Enemy Within is a good item to give out to people who sympathise with the political objectives of the BNP but believe the media smears they have heard about the party. 30p plus 18p p&p.

NEW LEAFLET

REBUILD BRITAIN NOW! Latest British National Party leaflet, produced to spearhead the coming phase of the party's 1993 recruiting campaign. Deals with the BNP policies on the main issues affecting the British economy: Imports, the EC, Immigration, Mine closures, etc. It is essential that BNP local units start ordering this leaflet in big quantities and begin mass-distribution of the leaflet — NOW! £4.50 per 1,000 plus postage charges of £4.10 for 1,000 and £4.65 for 2,000.

REBUILD BRITAIN NOW!

Only the British National Party can rebuild British industry and restore full employment

- Only the BNP will bring in selective import controls to protect our industries — just as the Japanese do
- Only the BNP will put an end to Third World immigration, which increases the number of people competing for British jobs
- Only the BNP will get Britain out of the European Community, which opens the door to European imports
- Only the BNP will open more coal mines instead of closing them — the BNP will make Britain truly self-sufficient in energy production
- Only the BNP will back British farmers and fishermen — the BNP will institute a 200-mile limit to protect our fishing fleet from the encroachments of foreign trawlers
- Only the BNP will supply the massive investment needed to rebuild our lost manufacturing industries

None of the old parties can provide the leadership that Britain needs. Get Britain back to work — join the BNP now!

STOP PRESS

Victory in court: Tyndall and Edmonds win appeal!

THE BRITISH NATIONAL PARTY won a considerable victory in the High Court on June 23rd, when the court allowed an appeal by BNP Chairman John Tyndall and National Activities Organiser Richard Edmonds on a point of law arising out of convictions at Wimbledon Magistrates Court and upheld on appeal at Kingston Crown Court last year.

The case arose when the two were charged for failing to remove BNP publicity material put on public display in Mitcham by persons unknown, contrary to the Town & Country Planning Act. They pleaded Not Guilty on the grounds that the material was placed without their knowledge or consent, but the lower courts ruled that that there was knowledge and consent once they had been informed of the display. The two appealed on the grounds that 'knowledge' and 'consent must be considered disjunctively, and that knowledge, later acquired, did not establish consent. This was allowed.

An announcement on the future legal implications of this verdict will be made shortly by bulletin.

YOUR LETTERS

Write to: The Editor, British Nationalist, PO Box 117, Welling, Kent DA16 3DW.

Sir: I am a loyal England football supporter. But after having seen their latest line up against San Marino, it is clear that they are rapidly becoming more like the African Eleven. Half our team was comprised of black players; how Graham Taylor has got the nerve to call them 'English' I just do not know. It is a disgrace.

One thing is certain, if this trend continues they will lose my support and many others too.

I. STUART Nottingham.

Sir: It seems that Nelson Mandela, the internationally renowned teacher's pet, has recently been asserting that a black government would sort out the 'crisis-ridden' economy of South Africa.

Unfortunately, these 'words of wisdom' have an all too familiar ring to them. We heard them during the 'wind of change' period of the 1950s and 60s when former colonies all over Africa went over to black rule. Yet today, what have these fine words meant in real terms? Most African countries are now suffering poverty, famine and AIDS on a massive scale while corrupt leaders maintain their own luxury by holding out the begging bowl to the civilised world.

If the glory of self-government was better than good government, why is it that millions of white Europeans are not emigrating to black Africa rather than the other way round?

P. SNELL
Ilkeston, Derbys.

Sir: I work as a senior staff nurse in a busy hospital in the North of England. I am writing to you to draw your attention to two recent incidents concerning the management of patients by their doctors.

A white English consultant who had been responsible for the care of a woman for a number of years and had watched helplessly as a debilitating disease brought her to a pathetic, painful and bed-ridden existence was asked by her and her family to put her out of her misery, which he did. He was dragged through the courts and publicly condemned as a result of granting them their wishes.

Yet an Asian anaesthetist who chose to leave a ten-year-old boy unattended under a general anaesthetic during a minor operation while he went for a forty-minute coffee break, and thus caused the boy's death, has been allowed to practise again from April of this year.

These incidents clearly show something very wrong with the Health Service.

My employment would be in danger if I provided you with my name.

SENIOR STAFF NURSE
Major city hospital, Yorkshire

Leftist subhumans launch knife-attack on BNP unit

We don't want you here!

Post, April 1, 1993

WE SAY...

Common sense will prevail

LAST weekend the British National Party took to the streets of the borough to peddle its distasteful brand of politics.

No matter how you dress it up, no one is left in any doubt what they are talking about.

Racism is distasteful and dispiriting as politics it can also be dangerous.

The country is in recession. People are looking for scapegoats and easy answers.

Ultra right wingers are looking to seize on this and recruit a few more lost souls to carry their tattered banner, blaming every ethnic group under the sun for the slump.

And what starts as politics can result in violence, racist attacks and disorder.

But they reckoned without the common sense of Gateshead folk.

Shoppers and passers-by made the ten BNP members feel as welcome as Michael Heseltine at a NUM meeting.

In the end they turned tail, packed up shop and went home.

Gateshead is a multi-cultural town and proud of it.

In troubled times it is heartwarming to see folk have not forgotten the last time this sort of racist politics was left unchecked.

WENT HOME

THE NORTH-EAST of England has recently become a hive of activity for the British National Party, with papersales and leaflet drops now a regular occurrence in areas such as Gateshead and Sunderland.

Due to last month's detailed coverage of the BNP's local election campaigns up and down the country, we did not have enough space to give the North-East units the coverage that they clearly deserve, but this can now be rectified.

PAPERSALE

One of the North-East region's most successful activities in terms of media publicity was the recent papersale in the town of Gateshead, where local people welcomed the BNP sales team and bought over thirty papers in the space of an hour.

Not quite so pleased with the day's events was a pair of Socialist W**kers Party lesbians, who sold only ONE copy of their rag in the same time that the BNP sold thirty copies of British Nationalist.

Quite rightly humiliated by their pathetic performance, the butch pair disappeared, returning half an hour later with a motley group of stoned junkies and a drunken tramp. While the lesbians screamed abuse at the nationalists, the tramp tried to stab one the BNP men with a six-inch knife.

Despite the fact that the reds had

AN EXERCISE in the town centre has led to fears that right wing extremists could be targeting the borough.

Ten members of the British National Party mounted a display stand in the centre on Saturday distributing political leaflets outside a food store.

But members of the North East Anti-Nazi League said the stand drew a hostile response from shoppers and passers-by who barracked the right-wingers before they were eventually moved on by the police.

Now league member Jill Hubbard has warned: "It is very probable they are now targeting Gateshead."

Last year they were very active in Sunderland and they could be looking at Gateshead because it has a strong Jewish community.

She applauded the efforts of the crowd of around 40 people who gathered to heckle the BNP members.

"People didn't want them here. There are a lot of old people who remember fighting the Nazis in the war and they were making their feelings known by telling them to get out. Everyone was really good."

By BRIAN NUTTNEY

Now the Anti Nazi League is mounting its own stand this coming Saturday just next to Gateshead Metro Station where they will be putting their message across.

Jill said: "We will be explaining why Nazis are so dangerous and why we should not tolerate them in Gateshead."

"Judging by the response of people on Saturday I don't think they will get away with it here."

Gateshead Council said its hands were tied when it came to stopping the display of information, such as last Saturday's, regardless of its content.

A spokeswoman said: "The council has only very limited powers and can only refuse permission for a display if it is likely to obstruct the highway."

"Obviously if it is likely to cause a disturbance then the police have powers to act."

The British National Party could not be contacted at the time of going to press.

'We moved on advice of police' BNP gives its side of story

IT is very difficult indeed to write an objective article about an event if you only hear one side of the story, if you have pre-conceived bias or if you have stereotyped certain groups with name tags they do not deserve.

This is certainly the case with your article concerning the British National Party — Post, April 1.

Your story implied that members of the public harangued and drove off

BNP supporters selling literature in the town centre. This is a far cry from what really happened that day.

A short time ago, HRH The Prince of Wales wrote: "I would suggest that most of us are probably very proud of our country and feel there is something rather special about Britain, about our towns, and about those aspects of our surroundings which provide us with what we loosely call character."

Is it so wrong to want to preserve our unique national character and traditions? To want to hand down to our descendants our distinct forms of architecture, music, dance, dress, literature and values which are quickly disappearing into an international melting pot?

Concerning the events on the day which were incorrectly reported in the Post, two young women, who an hour previously had been selling "Socialist Worker", hurled abuse at our members selling copies of British Nationalist.

They were joined by an inebriated man who threatened the BNP supporters with a knife. This was immediately reported to the police.

They also requested we move elsewhere, which we agreed to do. We went and sold newspapers at the Monument.

I would suggest that the next time SWP supporters have adrenalin to spare that they bring a bottle of turps and scrapers to Gateshead and remove the illegal graffiti and posters that mess up our shopping centres.

JOHN ASPINALL, BNP supporter,
PO Box 8, South Shields.

Junkies and glue-sniffers to blame for knife attack

I HAVE been informed that certain left-wingers through your newspaper are claiming that the "people of Gateshead" chased the British National Party out of the town centre one Saturday afternoon.

This is not true. I don't call a few scruffy members of the Trotskyite Socialist Workers' Party the "people" of Gateshead.

Nor are the junkies and glue-sniffers who launched a knife attack on one of our members. I don't think the true people of Gateshead would want to be associated with such behaviour.

Perhaps you should have asked the thirty or so Gateshead folk who bought our newspaper that day!

KEVIN SCOTT
BNP Regional Organiser,
PO Box 25, Sunderland S6 1YZ.

The BNP's activities in Gateshead clearly rattled the Establishment if the headline (above) in the Post is anything to go by. That the headline appeared on 1st April is appropriate, since the article was a tissue of lies and false propaganda against the British National Party. The paper presented the pathetic tantrum by the SWP as the views of "the people of Gateshead" — a ridiculous lie, as over thirty copies of BN were sold on the day.

The importance of writing letters and press releases to the local papers is demonstrated (left) by the article which appeared in a subsequent edition of the Post. Well-written letters by John Aspinall and Kevin Scott put the BNP case very well and gained as much space as the original anti-BNP article. Although the Establishment media is invariably biased against the BNP, it is a fact of life that we have to deal with the press whether we like it or not. It is therefore sensible to put the BNP view wherever possible, even if the press chooses to condemn us.

"WE SOLD IN BIRMINGHAM"

Paper-sale held as BNP defies left-wing mob

The hysterical opponents of the British National Party had promised their paymasters that they would prevent the BNP from selling British Nationalist in the city centre of Birmingham on Saturday, 12th June.

They of course failed, and we sold over thirty copies to delighted shoppers.

On the theme of 'Action Now' it had been planned that we should follow up on the previous highly successful Day of Action in Birmingham held in March.

Stage One of the activity was a papersale in Birmingham city centre, and was a great success.

For over an hour the public were able to purchase copies of BN.

As the BNP was leaving the sales pitch, a 200-strong ANA mob turned up to attack. The Nationalists, although outnumbered ten to one, stood their ground until the red gangsters were moved on by the police. Despite this provocation by the reds, the BNP maintained sufficient self-discipline to keep their actions within the law — unlike the reds, several of whom were arrested for public order offences.

Following the papersale, we left to go to Tivdale and Stage Two of our exciting Day of Action.

On the theme of 'Defend Tivdale', Stage Two consisted of a mass distribution of leaflets in the area where the Black Country Development Corporation plans to allow the building of 'Europe's largest Hindu temple'. This was followed by a demonstration on the proposed site in support of local residents who are opposed to the use of their green space for the temple; which will be for use by the Shri Venkateswara Hindu minority.

It was at the site on Dudley Road East that the local press eventually caught up with us to find that we had carried out our Day of Action precisely as we had informed them we would.

The day can be chalked up as a resounding success for the BNP, which resulted in massive front-page publicity for the Party. Result: BNP 2, Reds 0.

'MIDLANDER'

B.N.P. RECRUITMENT BOOSTED BY MASSIVE ELECTION PUBLICITY

The British National Party scooped an impressive set of poll results in the recent county council elections — but even more important than the number of votes was the massive amount of media publicity generated by the various campaigns.

In many cases the local press comment continued for many weeks after polling day, and the interest shown by both the media and the public has already yielded a substantial increase in recruitment for the BNP.

HIGH PROFILE

This is particularly the case where the Party staged high-profile meetings and rallies which attracted opposition from communist groups.

In some cases, what was a relatively modest activity by the BNP was transformed into a major news event thanks to the intervention of reactionary groups such as ANAL. A good example of this is illustrated in the press cutting below, where a modest rally of fifty or so BNP supporters in Colne, Lancs, achieved publicity far out of proportion to their numbers thanks to the arrival of a couple of hundred communists from outside the area. The communists not only failed to stop the rally, but more importantly put the BNP onto the front page of local newspapers both during and after the election.

It is almost certainly no coincidence that those areas achieving the highest publicity gained the highest votes and membership enquiries. This is because voters are impressed by a show of strength as much as actual policies.

'CREDIBILITY GAP'

In the past, voters have said again and again that they do not vote BNP because they do not think the Party is strong enough to win.

There is now pleasing evidence that the BNP has finally bridged this 'credibility gap', as the overall results this time were the highest achieved by a nationalist movement since 1979.

THINKING AHEAD

Local units should already be thinking ahead to their next election campaigns. Having achieved credible results in one area, it makes sense to expand into neighbouring territory. Units which have not yet fought an election should now be considering putting up a candidate next time.

Finally, it is worth debunking the mistaken belief that 'hostile' media coverage or ANAL's illegal smear leaflets are a significant threat to the BNP vote. Our own enquiries reveal they have a negligible effect on the public's perception of us, and on balance actually increase the BNP vote by raising the profile of the BNP.

The British public is in some respects not quite as gullible as the Establishment would like to believe!

Chief's speech on Nazis

Nazis on the march in Mansfield are "spewing out" hatred and filth in a fascist attack on the streets, warns councillors.

But Mansfield has been urged to fight back against a "tide of fascism" fuelled by 1990s-style racism leading on to over jobs.

MANSFIELD District Council leader Jim Hawkins was expected to make a statement concerning neo-Nazi activities in the town at a meeting of the full council today.

The announcement comes after a branch of the British National Party held a Christmas eve in the town.

And a during the past year, it came as no surprise to us that the Christmas "Blood and Honour" Nazi gig was held in Mansfield.

As an organisation which has been actively campaigning against the rise of fascism in Mansfield, it is not surprising that we should have received a petition which will ask our Member of Parliament by what ever means available, to The threat that these so-called nationalists pose to our society should not be underestimated.

Big rise in racial incidents

MANSFIELD (Notts) continues to be one of the British National Party's best recruitment areas thanks to the hard work of the local unit there. Since Christmas, Mansfield BNP has been in the local press virtually every week, though needless to say the coverage has not been very complimentary, with the predictable 'Nazi' smear being somewhat over-used.

In nearby Chesterfield (Derbys), the BNP unit has broken all records for the distribution of 'Join Us' leaflets. At a recent activity in Bolsover, the Chesterfield unit distributed almost one and a half thousand leaflets in a single evening — much to the annoyance of Labour MP Dennis Skinner. The left-wing buffoon with the phoney 'working class' accent was said to be 'hopping mad' that the BNP had dared to invade 'his' territory.

What we stand for

- The establishment of a government of national unity that will put an end to nationally divisive party warfare; the return of leadership and statesmanship to British affairs.
- An end to immigration and a start to repatriation.
- British withdrawal from the Common Market
- The disbanding of the multi-racial Commonwealth and its replacement by a new Commonwealth of self-governing white states.
- British ownership and control of British industry and resources.
- Protection of British industry by the selective exclusion of foreign manufactured goods from the British market.
- An end to the financial swindle that causes inflation and slump, and its replacement by a sane and fair financial system that will give the people the purchasing power to buy the goods they produce.
- The subordination of the power of the City to the power of government, and the harnessing of the City to the needs of British industry.
- The regeneration of British farming, with the object of achieving the maximum possible self-sufficiency in food production.
- Rejection of both the poll tax and its substitute, the new 'property tax', and a return to the old rates system, though with fairer rebates allowing for differences in income and in the numbers occupying properties.
- A healthy environment for a healthy people — the protection of our countryside and an end to the architectural disfigurement of our towns and cities.
- Tougher treatment of criminals, including the return of the death penalty.
- A return to traditional methods of education, with stronger discipline in the classroom and the sacking of 'trendy' teachers.
- An alternative defence strategy: withdrawal from NATO, closure of all foreign military and air bases in Britain, the strengthening of Britain's defences and a position of armed neutrality.
- An end to overseas aid and the allocation of the money saved to the financing of repatriation and greater help for the needy at home.
- The crushing of the IRA, the termination of the Anglo-Irish Agreement and firm support for the loyalist majority in Northern Ireland.
- Repeal of the laws permitting homosexuality and abortion (except where the latter is the result of rape or necessary on medical grounds), the wiping out of AIDS and a return to healthy moral values aimed at strengthening the family and community.

DAY OF DISGRACE!

Anger follows rally which brought terror

By PETER DEWHURST and PHIL BARTON

SIX people were arrested following clashes between the British National Party, their opponents, and police in riot gear during a rally in Pendle.

Two police officers and a police dog were injured during scuffles when the BNP tried to hold a rally at the Ball Grove Recreation Hall at Cottontree, Colne.

There were three distinct groups in the Colne area for Saturday's event. The locally-based Anti Nazi League held a peaceful and good-humoured demonstration in the centre of Colne. It had 150 to 200 supporters, many local, but with some from the Manchester and Blackburn area. Later, they walked down towards the BNP rally, but stopped short of the venue.

They had called for the banning of the BNP rally organised by the party's candidate in the county council election yesterday, Mr Shaun Cramble. It had been moved from the centre of Nelson to the remote hall at Ball Grove, in a bid to stop trouble.

There was the BNP itself, around 36 strong, including a lot of support from outside the area.

And there was a third group, Anti Fascist Action, whose members arrived by minibus from Manchester, clearly determined to stop the BNP holding its rally.

The trouble first flared when AFA members spotted a BNP party on the bridge, and charged at them.

Later, a car had its windows smashed.

After the rally, local Anti Nazi League representatives said they hoped people would remember the peaceful rallies they held yesterday week and on Saturday, rather than the AFA actions at Cottontree.

Mr Richard MacSweeney said: "We were very pleased with the response to the meeting on Thursday and the leafletting on Saturday. We have had a very good reaction from the public."

Mr Stuart Marsden added: "Many felt that, following the town centre gathering, they wanted to go down and protest at the meeting being held."

Mr MacSweeney continued: "We do not go along with attacks on bystanders and cars. Violence is not what the ANL is about. The AFA does tend to take more direct action. AFA was not invited by us — it acts on its own and has its own plans — its own way of working."

The Colne Times (above) reported how a 150-strong mob of reds turned up to oppose a lawful BNP election rally. Not only did the mob fail to stop the rally, its presence generated front page coverage for the BNP.

The report is of course highly biased against the British National Party, and is carefully worded to mislead the public into thinking that the violence of the red mob was in fact carried out by the BNP.

Nevertheless, it proves that even though the Establishment media do not like us, they can no longer afford to ignore us.
